VETERANS DAY

Call it by either of its names – Armistice Day or Veteran's Day – it still is the day that began as the celebration of the end of the actual fighting of World War I. In 1918 on the 11th hour, of the 11th day of the 11th month, a truce was signed between the Allies and the Germans in a railroad car in the Forest of Compiègne, France.

Most of the allied Countries commemorate the event by observing a period of silence on November 11th. The British services are held in front of the Cenotaph in London, and the French hold their ceremonies at the Arc de Triomphe in Paris. The Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery is the center of the observance of the date in the United States.

The Congress of the U. S. made Armistice Day a Legal Holiday in the District of Columbia in 1938, and all the States in the Union followed its example. The name of the Holiday was changed to Veteran's Day in 1954 in order to include the veterans of World War II, the Korean Conflict, and now the hostilities in Viet Nam. For indeed, the end of "The War to End All Wars" did not accomplish its goal, nor did the "War to Make the World Safe for Democracy" succeed.

It might be wise for those who say that only a "Mad Man" would even consider starting World War III, to remember it was a "Mad Man" who started World War II.

M/Sgt Wilburn K. Ross will be the Guest of Honor at the AmVets Veteran's Day Program that will be televised Fri. night at 6:30. K T N T – T V.

EM1 (SS) Jack Schinnell, son of Mr and Mrs Hans Schinnell of 217 Brandywine, is in the Submarine Service, on the Archer Fish – the only all Bachelor Ship in the Navy. They are engaged in Gepdetic Survey,, charting the reefs and Ocean bottom, and while based at Pearl Harbor, their range is from there to Japan and Australia. Since they are gone from base for such long periods – which is considered "hardship duty" only unmarried men are acceptable for this duty. They carry no armament, for theirs is a peaceful mission.

Jack – soon due for land duty, has asked to be stationed in Tacoma. He will maintain his Naval Status in the Submarine Service as an Instructor of Trainees on a Submarine Training Ship.

As I See It .....Homer R. Fleming

In its 100th Anniversary issue, The Villager has presented a vivid record of change and progress in education, a scenario of Washington history and its drama. In that century the migrating European, Asian and African have conquered a wilderness and a desert, and implanted thereon the highest level of development in our Country. That the teachers of those early days served well in the one room schoolhouses is attested to by the I.Q. certificates of recruits entering into military service, the highest in any state.

"Progress is only possible in those happy cases" wrote Walter Bagehot, "where the force of legality has gone far enough to bind the nation together, but not far enough to kill out the varieties, and destroy nature's perpetual tendency to change." In Washington the door is still open for men to utilize all of their talents, and contribute to a continuing evolution. The archives of a century depict a panorama of growth in the physical, psycological, ethical and spiritual. Surely where there is freedom there is progress, but we have only secured a beachhead in our quest for the riches of life.

What did the pioneers seek as they wended their way laboriously westward over the Oregon Trail in their covered wagons and later in the immigrant trains? Land and its resources, mineral wealth, industrial production, adventure over the horizon? You will note the first three everywhere, and there is the adventure of attaining another plateau of progress. But while trees produce fruit east of the Cascades, and trees produce lumber on the west side, we have yet to probe the potentials of our psychological and spiritual reserves. And life is always a quest.

William James, the great psychologist, believed that the real world is of a different nature and constructed more intricately than the physical scientists will acknowledge — A world yet unseen. As science probes and pushes back the veil of mysteries so likewise are religious orders expanding their concepts of the Spiritual. Science moves forward by perception, and religion by revelation, the two approaching an ultimate convergence.

Looking ahead, there is wonderful promise.

The Pastor Ponders.....Gaenville A. Dawn

What would happen if all the road signs on our Highways were all mixed up? If we know our way around we would not be disturbed. What of the visitor? There are times and places where we are also the visitor. Thus, with even a few mixed up signs one couldn't travel safely nor be sure of arriving at his destination.

There is an obvious mix-up of signs along the highway of life. Once we were all quite sure of the proper moral code. With the rise of the "New Morality", some of us go one way, others go another way. People seem to be going in all directions at the same time, each hoping to achieve the same goal.

Of course many things do change which are mistakenly identified with a moral code: The color of the hair, type of apparel, or length of dress are not in themselves a moral issue. They are a-moral in nature. Placing emphasis on these is to focus on a symptom rather than on the disease.

Our addiction to these changing fads, however, tends to dull our sense of the changeless character of truth. Stealing must always be identified as stealing, or words will lose their meaning.

We need to allow the Truth of God to become the guideline in our lives. In the Old Testament Isaiah gives a warning which illustrates how old the 'New Morality' is:

"Woe to those who call evil good and good evil,
who put darkness for light
and light for darkness,
who put bitter for sweet,
and sweet for bitter!" 5:20

Food Sale Report

The DuPont Garden Club wishes to thank the donaters and customers who helped make their recent Food Sale a success. They are happy to report that they added $78.10 to their Treasury, and it will be put to good use.

Halloween Party a Success.

The Halloween Party sponsored by the Sunday School was indeed a success. Approximately one hundred children and teenagers appeared for the festivities conducted by Mrs Nancy Smith and Mrs Jane Dawn while Mrs Ruth Jafrati and Mr. Kenneth Karnes lent their valuable assistance as the "Clean-up" Committee.

Prizes were awarded to the elementary School children for unusual costumes and in some instances the costumes were so original, the judges found it difficult to tell the boys from the girls. The teenagers provided their own entertainment of games and dancing. A "seance" by Denny Kelly was an amusing highlight of the entertainment.

Refreshments were served to all participants — and thus ended a happy night of "Trick or Treat", and Halloween fun.

By the way, kids..... Did you have fun and would you like to get together more often? Write out your opinions and suggestions and drop them in The Villager Box located on the porch at 406 Barksdale.

Police Blotter.....

Our Marshal, Earle Milne, reports that the Fire Dept is planning to install a 200 foot Fire Hose on the new Police Utility and Fire Truck. The truck is already equipped with a siren and an official red light. With the aid of the Utility Truck he is able to patrol the town's streets and alleys every night.

The Villager joins the residents of DuPont in thanking Earle for the safe and secure feeling we enjoy because of his nightly vigils.

IS YOUR PERSONALITY SHOWING?

Your personality is not what people see when they look at you - it's what they see in you. Friendliness, a good sense of humor, consideration, good manners, a pleasant voice and intelligence are a few such qualities.

You probably have many of these qualities, but if you are shy and withdrawn, no one will know. In fact, people might think you are conceited when you are the opposite.

Fortunately, self-consciousness can be overcome, but it takes practice. The trick: speak up. Start with "Hello" or "Hi" - looking at the other person as you say it. When you are standing or sitting next to someone, force yourself to say something.

After all, you aren't shy and withdrawn with your family and close friends. You can converse with them. And once you have broken the ice with people outside your own circle you will begin to gain confidence in yourself, and can start to develop that personality trait - being a good conversationalist.

Interesting Flag Information------

No flag should be flown above the Stars and Stripes except in the following situations:

(1) The Church Pennant during divine services conducted at sea by Naval Chaplains.

(2) The United Nations Flag at the U. N. Headquarters.

Displaying the Flag inverted, that is with the Union down, is a signal of dire distress.

"Striking the Colors" means to lower the flag to half-mast. It indicates submission or surrender.

Flying the Flag at half mast is a symbol of mourning.

Should the death of a service man or woman occur during the period of service, the Flag is provided by the Service. The flag for the burial service of an honorably discharged veteran is furnished by the Veteran's Administration, Washington, D. C. It may be obtained from the DuPont Post Office upon proper proof of discharge. The flag must be presented to the next of kin at the appropriate moment in the burial service. Should there be no relative present, or one cannot be located, the flag must be returned to the Veteran's Administration.
